Pathways of brick, stone, gravel, turf, and mulch lead from one garden to another, providing contrast throughout the entire property as they set the tone for each garden's level of formality and simplicity.

Mr. and Mrs. Draime's passion for unusual plants and unique sculpture is very evident in each and every garden within the nine acre estate. Three great friends of the Draime's were instrumental in bringing their vision to reality: architect Thomas Schroth designed their home and assisted in developing the general layout of the estate; Jim Gilmore, of J. Gilmore Design, oversaw the development and installation of the gardens; and Dennis Lewis Sr., of Lewis Construction, was the contractor for all of the major construction projects. More recently, Bob Frieden, of Frieden Landscaping, and Bart Gilmore, of J. Gilmore Design, led the design and construction of two new gardens to the estate - the Chapel Garden and Mossy Creek Garden respectively.
